Dear Mr. Lodal:

We are pleased that you have accepted [redacted] invitation to talk to our Seminar on Intelligence and National Security Policy which will meet on Wednesday, 14 November 1984, from 5:00 to 7:30 p.m. This will be the second of four sessions on the role of intelligence production during the Nixon Administration, which will be attended by about a dozen CIA Senior Intelligence Service Officers, mainly from production components of the Agency. Enclosed, for your information, is the reading list which is being sent to each attendee.

STAT

We have invited George Allen to join you in a discussion on "Intelligence and National Security Policy: SALT I," and have asked him to call you about the Seminar. You and he may make any mutually agreeable arrangements for your part of the session. The Seminar leader, [redacted] will introduce you and ask you to describe what the policymakers' needs were before and after SALT I was signed, and how well they were served. George will be asked to comment on the subject from the point of view of CIA's production components. The meeting will conclude with a discussion period of about 30 minutes.
